Hardenberg / Coevorden - Dr. Jay Marino passes Monday, April 4th at Theatre Voorveghter a master at teaching staff Educational Foundation Arcade, which make all public primary schools in Hardenberg and Coevorden part of it.

In this masterclass Marino tells how it works to improve educational outcomes sustainable. He tells an inspiring way he knows how to involve everyone in the school, explains the connection between all levels and how he creates shared ownership and focus. He links the theory quite recognizable from the everyday practice by using concrete examples, photos and videos. Jay Marino is one of the small steps in a continuous process of improving education. Due to its solid theoretical knowledge and his great experience he allows everyone to make connection with the development of their own school.

Marino works as responsible school leader (superintendent) in primary and secondary education in different school districts in the United States. He focuses on continuously improving the process, the learning organization and learning in the 21st century. He was promoted written on this subject and on the subject of various books and publications. In the Netherlands he has been asked a lot and inspirational keynote speaker at national conferences, school boards and school teams. Its good practice speaks many from teaching, because he offers a contemporary response at all levels from connection and ownership to appropriate education in a contemporary learning environment to match the skills of the 21st century.

"Very different from leather look "

The thought of Marino fits perfectly within the Education Foundation Arcade policies. 'Held at various schools within our organization will provide the way of education to the light. Reason is that we pay very different look to learn," says CEO of Aranka Heyningen. "It's one of the reasons that all directors and Internal counselors of the schools previously attended a masterclass of Jay Marino this year and subsequently followed a training program. It is now to look to the schools themselves in what way should be followed here. "

"Every school has its own identity and freedom in terms of policy choices when it comes to teaching content aspects. But they all have in common that they want to remain constantly evolve. It is a constant process throughout the organization, from administration to students. Nobody escapes continuous improvement, "Van Heyningen decision.
